One of the most critical ways that individuals can influence governmental decision-making is through voting. Voting is a formal expression of preference for a candidate for office or for a proposed resolution of an issue. Voting generally takes place in the context of a large-scale national or regional election; however, local and small-scale community elections can be just as critical to individual participation in government.

EDITOR'S NOTE

Regret is a killer. Hasty decisions – whether made out of love, hatred, desperation, or any other extreme emotion – seldom account for the right choices in long term. Even the sages, be it Jinnah, Gandhi, or religious/spiritual leaders, all stress upon thinking a hundred times before taking a decision, and then sticking by it. As young students, we often jump into relationships, fights and "revolutionary causes", only to feel stupid and duped later on. At the end of the day, it's really a matter of our young (and often over-excited) blood, but the more important thing is to learn from our mistakes, and take each setback as experience. Yes, You Only Live Once (YOLA) is a wonderful concept from a distance, but it would be so much better if we add the So Don't Be Stupid (SDBS) extension to it!

Official in Russia for strategic dialogue

The strategic dialogue marks a new phase in their relations that have been characterized by a long history of estrangement.

The two-day dialogue would cover a wide range of issues including exchange of views on regional and international developments, and discussions on economic, political and defence cooperation.

Pakistan-Russia rapprochement has been quietly in the works for the past three years. There have been a number of high-level exchanges, both political and military, during this period, which essentially helped the two countries to move towards a reset in ties. The start of the strategic dialogue now lays the institutional framework for rebuilding the relationship.

Russian President Vladimir Putin was to visit Pakistan last September, but cancelled the trip at the eleventh hour due to unspecified reasons. However, the setback did not stop the normalisation process.

The Chinese Navy hospital set sail from Zhoushan in Zhejiang province of China on June 10 to carry out 'Mission Harmony-2013'. Two brothers from Gojal set new record in mountaineering Descending a peak is considered as dangerous as ascending one – which is why mountain climbers take the same amount of time to descend as they would take to climb. However, in July two brothers from Gojal Valley in G-B achieved a new feat when they descended four 6,000-metre high mountains in a few minutes – all within a week. Niamat Karim, 27, and his 15-year-old brother Mansoor Karim scaled the 6,000 metre-high Quz Sar and Qol

Two days later, the duo ascended the summit of the 6,050-metre high Mingling Sar in a six-hour long trek and returned back to base camp in 17 minutes. “We are all striving to make it to the big screen,” said Faisal Rafi, the music producer turned cinema installation consultant as he walked through the halls of what is said to be Pakistan’s biggest cinema complex. Rafi’s transition into the cinema business is fairly recent – till a year back he was known for guiding people through his studio where one could listen to the unfinished tracks of the likes of Strings and Karavan.

According to Rafi, the standard cinema seats are of 18 inches but they have chosen to go for a 21-inch-seat which why where there could have been four to five hundred seats in the hall, there is a lot less.

“Experience is the key here,” he explained. “We could have easily stacked up people but that would have been tiring, especially when a major chunk of the movies come from Bollywood which are three hours long.”

Jawad Hussain, a student of grade 10, has released his 11th Pashto album titled Khukalee Kharsagee Pa Dalarro (The beauty is worth a dollar) for Eid.

Hailing from a traditional music family, Jawad launched his singing career in 2010 while still in grade 7 with his debut Pashto album Da Khkulo Bachayee Da (The beauty rules).

Teenage Jawad gives equal time to both his studies and music practice though he has opted for science subject in a private English medium school in Peshawar. He has learnt playing harmonium from his father at home and wants to do master in Pashto music if given a scholarship.

The audio-video CD has been shot at beautiful locations near Kakasahib, Nowshera district to correspond to the lyrics and imagination of the poets. The CD is expected to find a good market in Afghanistan and Gulf States besides local music charts in Peshawar. Jawad has released 10 albums in Pashto and this one is his 11th release in his early teens.

Contd. Pakistan release Indian prisoners as IT strives to Pakistani Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif says better relations with India are key to restoring a fledgling economy but it is Pakistan's military that traditionally sets foreign and security policies, even during periods of civilian rule.

The prisoners, including fishermen detained for straying into what Pakistan sees as its waters over the past two years, were allowed to go home through the Wagah border crossing, between the Pakistani city of Lahore and India's Amritsar.

'Pakistan and India were one country in past, they should compromise with each other and live peacefully like brothers,' said fisherman Kailash Nathu, 17, who was heading home after being arrested in January.

Another Indian fisherman, 30-year-old Shabbir Usman, said India should now release Pakistani prisoners.

'Pakistan and India should sign a treaty for not arresting innocent fishermen. If they sign such treaty, it would help strengthen friendly relations,' he said, surrounded by grinning colleagues as they approached the border crossing.

singing at that tender age as they wanted me to first complete my complete my education and then plunge into the arena of music which I believe is not everybody's cup of tea," he recalls.

Jawad says that cowing to his repeated requests, his parents clandestinely permitted him to release his debut Pashto album in early 2010 which broke all precious record of the Pashto music charts made earlier by child stars.

The teenage singer since then has been to Dubai and Kabul many a time and enjoys a widespread fame for his velvety voice.

One of his hit songs Mala Jawab Raka (Give me reply) became so popular among the music lovers that it earned the title of a Pashto movie in 2011 that did a thriving business.

"I was offered a minor role in a PTV play. I acted it out but my forte is singing.

There are some books on Pashto music but unfortunately they are for professionals. Therefore I have intention to do master level research on the historical evolution of Pashto music and also preserve our rich folk music through notation," the young singer wishes.

Commenting on the trend of emerging young singers he says that most have no background knowledge of music. They consider it only a source of entertainment and not a discipline of knowledge, he adds.

"Also many of the so-called young singers don't bother to receive a proper training from a perfect teacher. They depend mostly on computer software and I think it is not going to help them any longer. One has to learn its delicacies," Jawad says.

He adds that he likes folk songs but light ghazal touches his heart. "Mehdi Hassan and Ghulam Ali are my all-time favourite ghazal singers. In Pashto folk music, Rahim Shah is my source of inspiration. Pashto music has a thriving market," says Jawad.

Contd. Misbah-ul-Haq leads Pakistan to series victory vs Zimbabwe in the game as Pakistan posted a total of 260 for six, before bowling Zimbabwe out in 40 overs to win by 108 runs and complete a 2-1 series victory.

The series decider had been cast into doubt after Zimbabwe's players threatened to boycott the match over unpaid salaries and match fees, but the home side took the field after setting a new ultimatum for the first Test.

For a side with off-field distractions, the Zimbabweans started surprisingly well in the field after Brendan Taylor had won the toss and asked Pakistan to bat on a slow surface.

The tourists made a circumspect start with openers Ahmed Shehzad and Nasir Jamshed putting on 66 for the first wicket at a sluggish pace, and the innings became stilted when Jamshed departed and Mohammad Hafeez was forced to retire hurt soon after.

Although Misbah at one stage appeared overly cautious in scoring just 16 from his first 45 deliveries, the tactic was vindicated as the stability it provided allowed Pakistan to score 120 in the final 13 overs.

"I was really struggling because the ball wasn't coming onto the bat," said Misbah.

"There was a bit of inconsistent bounce and inconsistent pace, so I just made sure we played all 50 overs and if we could score 250 or more that could be really defendable on this pitch."

While Shehzad contributed 54, Umar Amin was crucial in adding momentum to the innings as he struck a brisk 33, while Sarfraz Ahmed and the returning Hafeez also weighed in during a late flurry that lifted Pakistan to a solid score.

Zimbabwe's reply never really got going, and was hampered by run-outs to key batsmen.

Captain Brendan Taylor made a promising 26 before Misbah's direct hit accounted for his opposite number, while Sean Williams was also dismissed by the Pakistani skipper.

After Zimbabwe had collapsed to 87 for six in the 23rd over, Malcolm Waller and Prosper Utseya put on 58 for the next wicket before the latter was run out in a mix-up.

Waller was the last man out for 48 when he got a leading edge off the bowling of Saeed Ajmal, as Zimbabwe were bowled out for 152.

"We were definitely up for it today and we restricted them to a total that we felt comfortable chasing, but there was maybe a bit of panic there when it was time to chase it down," Taylor said.

"All in all I think we can take a lot of heart out of the series - they came back strong as we expected, but there were definitely a lot of positives we can take away."

on the ship and we are also holding joint workshops here on board as well as at PNS Shifa," he said.

Earlier, members of the media were given a tour of the ship and its many well-equipped sections and departments. The ship's task includes treatment and evacuation of injured and sick personnel at sea and medical support for troops stationed on islands and atolls. It also participates in medical science research, experiments and exercises, international peacekeeping, humanitarian aid, emergency response and rescue in times of disaster as well as the evacuation and protection of overseas Chinese.

The ship, 4,000 square metres in size, includes seven offices for doctors, eight nurse stations, eight operating theatres and 20 intensive care units in addition to 300 beds. It has a medical crew of 100. There has been a continuous flow of patients at the Peace Ark from the moment it reached Karachi. The media teams were allowed to meet some of the patients admitted there after surgical procedures carried out on the ship. Patients are initially received in the reception area, which also serves as a triage area where the nurses in pink uniforms access the patients before directing them to the dentist, eye, ENT, skin, acupuncture or other specialists on board. In the laboratory, the visitors were informed by the staff in light-blue uniforms that the ship carried at least 200 pints of blood of various groups at all times.

In the medical information room, a team of medical experts can monitor any procedure being done on the ship while communicating with the doctors in the operating theatres to give them their advice. In the case of a more complicated case, they can connect with hospitals in China as well.

All patients on board the ship spoke to the doctors through smart interpreters, mostly women. The information taken from the patients was then translated back into Chinese for the doctors. Dou Mei, one of the interpreters when spoken to in English, smiled and replied in clear Urdu: "Aap Urdu main bhi baat ker sakti hain. I understand and speak your beautiful language thora thora."

Swat to host first golf event in 20 years

For the first time in 20 years, Swat will be holding a national golf tournament featuring 200 players from across the country, starting today in Kabal.

Among the 200 participants, 54 professionals, 27 senior professionals, 45 amateurs and seven senior amateur including other players will vie for the prestigious title.

The venue for the event is the Cedar Golf Club, which, according to the Khyber-Pakhtunkhwa (K-P) Golf Association Secretary, Colonel (retd) Shahadat, was constructed by the then crown prince Mi-angul Aurangzeb in 1964.

"Tournaments and matches used to be played here regularly and players from across the country participated," he said. "However, since 1992, no match or tournament has been organised here."

The Cedar Golf Club has the largest golf course in the province with a spread over 122 acres.
