Pakistan's standing in the global rankings

Overview

Pakistan observed a slight improvement in the overall international rankings in 2018 covering socio-economic and political outcomes of the country. Several elements complemented the prospects including successful democratic transition, efficient counter-terrorism measures leading to enhanced peace and security, and foreign direct investment inflows under CPEC, among others. Albeit, decoupling economic growth from human development suggests that the country needs to enhance its scores in health, education and standard of living by ensuring political will, equitable financing and efficient governance to ensure parallel growth for marginalized segments as well. Civil and political liberties must grow hand in hand to ensure a conducive environment for democratic dialogue and accountability which ultimately supports its nation building process.

Defence Day at Greenwich University

By Ali Jillani
Head, Diplomatic Affairs

Greenwich University commemorated Pakistan's Defence Day on September 6, 2019 at its Karachi Campus. The event featured documentaries of martyrs, national songs and speeches highlighting the sacrifices for sovereignty and honor. The seminar also featured a special emphasis on the commendable resistance of innocent Kashmiri people against the atrocious state terrorism of the Indian state.

Seema Mughal, Vice Chancellor, emphasized that love for the motherland must be the top most priority for every Pakistani. The principle of national sovereignty must go hand in hand with our quest for globalization. She also pressed that Kashmir's right to self determination must be respected on the basis of humanitarian considerations. She encouraged the young students of arts, media and social sciences to play their role in supporting Kashmiri narrative through social media.

Ali Jillani, Head - Diplomatic Affairs, explained how globalization has changed the dynamics of geo-strategics underlining that Pakistanis must bring more to leverage the socio-economic and political stability of the country. He admired Kashmiri resistance unmasking the abuse of human rights by the so-called largest democracy in the world violating several UN resolutions, and called on the international community to stand by the values they cherish and propagate. He pressed that UN should play a proactive role in mediating the conflict to avoid a nuclear catastrophe affecting millions.

Mr. Iqbal Jamil, Lecturer Media Studies department, appreciated the tireless efforts of our forces in defense of the country and emphasized that every Pakistani stands shoulder to shoulder with them. He condemned the violence of Indian state against the innocent people of Kashmir and called upon people from all walks of life to support Kashmiri call for justice. He also thanked his peers for helping him coordinate the event.

The seminar resolved that Indian economic diplomacy must not be allowed to hegemonize the discourse on Kashmir and should held accountable for its carnage in Kashmir. The seminar also emphasized that governmental efforts must be complemented by civil society initiatives across global fora to advocate Kashmir's right to self-determination. A large number of students, faculty and guests attended the event commemorating Pakistan's Defence Day and expressing solidarity with Kashmir.

Prime Minister Imran Khan with Chinese President XI Jinping

Prime Minister Imran Khan will soon visit China to discuss expansion of projects under the CPEC framework, planning minister said.

Minister for Planning, Development and Reform Makhdum Khusro said the PM's upcoming visit to China would further bolster ties between two strategic partners.

"During the visit expansion of CPEC (China-Pakistan Economic Corridor) framework including cooperation in agriculture, industrial and socioeconomic sectors will be discussed," Bakhtyar said, talking to Ambassador of China Yao Jing in a meeting. Deputy Chairman Planning Commission Jehanzeb Khan, Secretary Planning Zafar Hasan, and senior officials of the planning ministry were also present in the meeting.

Planning minister said China is a close and strategic partner of Pakistan and "bilateral partnership between the two countries will continue to touch new heights in future". "It is in this backdrop that Prime Minister Imran Khan is visiting China to further promote bilateral trade and commerce exchange," an official statement quoted the minister as saying. Bakhtyar said CPEC offers enormous potential to boost national economy and reduce poverty. "The pace of CPEC projects has accelerated after the incumbent government came into power."

The two dignitaries expressed confidence that the visit of PM would further strengthen friendship between the two strategic partners. China initiated a series of infrastructure development projects under the $60 billion CPEC framework, which is an important part of Chinese Road and Belt initiative. The majority of the early harvest projects under CPEC framework were related to power sector.

Chinese Ambassador Jing appreciated the minister for planning for gearing up the momentum on CPEC portfolio. He expressed satisfaction on the pace of CPEC projects. "Ongoing phase of CPEC will bring about socioeconomic benefits for the welfare of the people of Pakistan."

During the meeting, various CPEC projects including development over special economic zones, Mainline-I, holding of the next joint cooperation committee meeting which would be held in Islamabad in November came under discussion.

Khyber Pakhtunkhwa eyes new app to boost tourism in province

A new smartphone application launched by the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa (KP) government is aiming to facilitate the travels of thousands of domestic and foreign tourists as peace returns to the province.

The app, which has been operational since July 3, allows tourists visiting KP to access information regarding archaeological, adventure, religious and cultural sites, as well as the contact numbers of relevant departments, tour operators, hotels and restaurants. Visitors using the app can find trekking and backpacking spots and locate tourist resorts, lakes, rivers and waterfalls.

"We are making all-out efforts to attract around 10 million foreign tourists to KP during our five-year government term," Senior Minister for Sports and Tourism Muhammad

Atif Khan said at the launch event in Peshawar. "More projects to promote tourism in KP are in the pipeline."

About 2 million tourists, including many foreigners, visited different parts of KP during the Eid ul Fitr holidays, he said.

The new app, which is free to download, offers a complete social-media component that lets visitors interact with other tourists and allows them to share their experiences, according to the KP Department of Tourism.

Tourists visiting KP are drawn by the natural beauty of the province, such as its green valleys, rivers, landscapes, snow-capped mountains, waterfalls and streams, along with its rich cultural heritage and archaeological sites.

EU allocates 300,000 euros to provide emergency relief to victims of Sep 24 earthquake

According to a press release issued by the European Commission on Friday, the funds, equivalent to Rs51.4 million, will "address the most pressing needs of around 3,000 vulnerable people in some of the hardest-hit areas".

Additionally, it will ensure access to clean water for the communities in the affected areas with special attention being paid to those who are most in need, including people with limited sources of income.

AJK's Mirpur city suffered the most damage from the 5.6 magnitude earthquake, which left at least 38 people dead, over 500 injured and damaged thousands of houses and road infrastructure.

The European Commission press release added that the EU funding was being made available by the European Civil Protection and Humanitarian Aid Operations (ECHO) through its 'Small Scale Response' mechanism, which was described as a "global mechanism which allows for rapid funding for up to 300,000 euros for humanitarian aid in countries affected by natural and man-made disasters".

UAE to invest $5bn in oil refinery project in Pakistan by end of 2019: report

The United Arab Emirates (UAE) will invest $5 billion in an oil refinery project in Pakistan by the end of the year, Arab News reported.

In an interview with the publication, UAE Ambassador to Pakistan Hamad Obaid Ibrahim Salem Al-Zaabi said: "We are going to launch very soon one of the biggest investments in a refinery project in Hub.

It is going to be a $5 billion investment between Mubadala Petroleum Company of Abu Dhabi, Pak Arab Refinery Limited (Parco) and OMV [OMV Pakistan Exploration Gesellschaft]."

According to Arab News, Al-Zaabi said the project was a result of "extensive discussions" between Mubadala Petroleum, Pakistan's petroleum ministry as well as Parco and OMV.a

"This project will show the strength of UAE-Pakistan relations and how the UAE is focusing on investment in and future of Pakistan," he was quoted as saying, adding that the two nations were moving forward on new projects and investment.

The UAE ambassador said that the two governments were "finalizing the minute details of this refinery project".

"Many meetings have taken place regarding this project," he added, sharing that a UAE delegation, headed by the chief executive officer of Mubadala Petroleum, had met with the Board of Investment (BoI) chairman and the petroleum minister during a visit to Pakistan a few months ago.

Uncovering secrets of mystery civilization in Saudi Arabia

A team of researchers is carrying out the first in-depth archaeological survey of part of Saudi Arabia, in a bid to shed light on a mysterious civilization that once lived there. The Nabataean culture left behind sophisticated stone monuments, but many sites remain unexplored.

The rock-strewn deserts of Al Ula in Saudi Arabia are known for their pitch-black skies, which allow stargazers to easily study celestial bodies without the problem of light pollution.

But the region is becoming even more attractive for archaeologists.

A long-lost culture known as the Nabataean civilizations inhabited the area starting from around 100 BC and persisted for some 200 years.

Now, archaeologists are planning to carry out the first in-depth survey of a chunk of land here that's roughly the size of Belgium.

The large international team of more than 60 experts has started work on an initial, two-year project to survey the core area of 3,300 sq km in north-western Saudi Arabia. This is the first time such a large area of scientifically uncharted territory has been systematically investigated.

How model Ali Kureshi bagged his first role in Sarmad Khoosat's Zindagi Tamasha

"Sarmad saw my face on Facebook and he asked his team to contact me," revealed the model.

We've all been waiting on Zindagi Tamasha ever since the first teaser dropped and after the trailer, we're all hyped up.

Model Ali Kureshi is also making his acting debut in the film and speaking to Images, he opened up about his character.

Kureshi said, "My character is Danish, he lives in Lahore and belongs to a middle-class family and he's a very loving, kind and supportive husband."

"Something happens in my wife Sadaf's family and he supports her and her family throughout the movie. The story is about a Lahori family and my father-in-law is a famous Naat Khwan and he does something which was not accepted by the society."

So how did Kureshi, who just walked the ramp during L'Oreal Paris Bridal Week a few days ago, nab the role of Danish?

"Sarmad saw my face on Facebook and he asked his team to contact me," revealed Ali. "I saw their message after a few days and shared my contact."

"I did audition for the role, they sent me a script that wasn't from the movie and I did it. They got in touch a week and a half later and let me know that Sarmad wants to meet me. He told me I was good for the character and narrated the story of his film."

Sarmad Khoosat's second directorial has been written by Nirmal Bano and produced by Kanwal Khoosat.

Added Kureshi, "Working for Sarmad and Khoosat films was a great experience for me, and as you know I've been doing modeling for the last four years. Acting and modelling are two very different things and it was the first time I acted in front of a camera [but] they taught me how to act and how to deliver dialogues. I learnt a lot and all I can say is I thank them for showing immense trust in me."

There is no release date for Zindagi Tamasha as of yet but Ali Kureshi claims it will be out in a few months.

Sir Anwar Pervez: from driving buses to billion-dollar conglomerate

“Sometimes in my dreams the happy ones, not nightmares I am back in Bradford, driving a bus and feeling content with life,” Sir Anwar Pervez said, in a conversation with Dawn at his group’s sprawling headquarters in the North West London borough of Brent.

Even several decades after his bus-driving days in the industrial city of Bradford, Sir Anwar, the Pakistani-origin British billionaire who founded the Bestway Group, still says that his earliest memories of life in the United Kingdom are his fondest.

“I had nothing in Pakistan,” he said, recalling the circumstances when he left home at the age of 21. “I did my matriculation, but my parents didn’t have money to send me to university. I used to work as a telephone operator for Rs96 a month and most of my salary would be spent on anti-malaria medication. It was a huge problem then.”

After working as a bus conductor and driver for about five years, Sir Anwar said he started to save money to bring his relatives to England. One by one, his family members arrived here in the early 60s, and their incomes together made it possible to dream of a business. In 1963, he opened a retail store in Earl’s Court, a specialist store which sold masala and halal meat.

“I was making about Rs600 a week, but I was only catering to a specialist clientele. When I went to the high street and saw the other shops, I realised that what I was doing was only catering to one per cent of the market.”

This marked the beginning of the entrepreneur’s journey in wholesale. He delved into the business of the cash and carry stores that today, under the group’s wholesale banner, are worth billions of pounds. More retail units followed and by the early 1970s he had opened 10 general food stores. The company moved into wholesale in 1976 when its first cash and carry warehouse was established in Acton.

Sir Anwar credits his success to “99 per cent hard work and honesty”.

“One per cent is due to luck. How else would a man like me, from a village, reach where I am today? I was lucky to have come here to have met good people.”

The company enjoys a reported 18pc market share in the UK wholesale sector, employing 4,500 people. Beyond wholesale it operates business in cement, banking and pharmacy.

As the conversation turned back to nightmares, Sir Anwar said: “Honestly, the [former] chief justice and press appear in my nightmares.”

He referred to retired CJP Saqib Nisar who, through suo motu notices, hit out at cement factories, including the one owned by Sir Anwar’s group.

The widely reported 2018 Katas Raj case was hinged on the improper use of groundwater by cement factories, whom the judge had said were “destroying the ecosystem”. Through his characteristic harsh observations, Justice Nisar had criticized Bestway in particular. Eventually, the case was closed when the factories were ordered to arrange their own water supply. Additionally, United Bank Limited, of which the group is a majority owner, was also dragged to court when the then CJP had taken notice of banks. Sir Anwar says the case is pending before the Supreme Court and has not seen much movement since the judge retired.

Sir Anwar hints at a high-level meeting he had during those days with an influential and powerful personality in Pakistan. The meeting was held so Sir Anwar could convey his displeasure at being “unfairly targeted” by the ex-CJP. “In Pakistan if someone’s stomach is hurting, there is only one doctor to go to. I did the same, but nothing really came of it. I was told that my message would be conveyed but the case is still pending in court.”

Sir Anwar said that for a long time he thought his message had not been conveyed to the judge, but then he realized it must have been delivered when Justice Nisar saw him at an event and hinted that he knew Sir Anwar had complained about him. Still, the businessman said he got no relief.

When asked what Pakistan can do to attract investment, Sir Anwar said: “Business owners must pay their taxes and stop paying bribes.”

He recalled how surprised he felt when a prominent Pakistani businessman once bragged to him about paying bribes. “I told him that in the UK, if you say you paid a bribe you would be arrested. Those giving bribes should stop creating temptations for others.”

ML-I project worth $8.2b finalised: Sh Rashid

Minister for Railways Sheikh Rashid Ahmed Wednesday said Pakistan had finalized with China Main Line (ML-I) project a dual railway track that would significantly reduce travel time from Peshawar to Karachi.

During meeting with Chinese Minister for Transport Li Xiaopeng, he said the project would prove to be a great milestone and open up new vistas of opportunities and progress for Pakistan, a press release received here from Beijing said.

The minister said China’s investment of billions of dollars in Pakistan was a great example of trust between the two countries. In the meeting matters of mutual interest came under discussion and ways to improve the system of Pakistan Railways were also discussed at length.

Paying tribute to Prime Minister Imran Khan on taking keen interest in the ML-I project, Sheikh Rashid said Chinese government and companies were playing vital role to put Pakistan Railways on the path of progress and prosperity.

The railway line would be completed under the China Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) project.

He said 1,872 kilometer dual track would be laid between Peshawar to Karachi under ML-I project and the speed of the train would be enhanced to 160 km per hour.

He said after the completion of ML-I the duration of the journey between Peshawar to Karachi would reduce to eight hours while travel time between Lahore to Rawalpindi would come down to two and a half hours. Sheikh Rashid said estimated cost of ML-I project would be $8.2 billion and it would be completed in five years. The completion of ML-I would not only put Pakistan Railways on the right path but the project would be as important as Gwadar Port in the progress and prosperity of the country, he added.

He said PC-I of the ML-I had sent to Planning Division for further action.

PLBW 2019 recap: The celebrities that stunned on the runway this year

Bridal couture was in full swing last week as some of Pakistan's most celebrated designers showcased their latest festive wear as at the PFDC Paris L'Oreal Bridal Week (PLBW) 2019.

From Sania Maskatiya and Saira Shakira bringing exquisite pastels to full bloom to HSY exuding regal vibes in his accurately-named Empire collection, there was some definite hits to take inspiration from for the upcoming winter wedding season.

Not only that but some of our favourite celebrities shone like the stars on the runway as well. Think Mawra Hocane, Maya Ali and Mansha Pasha lighting up the ramp in some bespoke ensembles and we couldn't get enough. Let's look at some of the highlights of the PLBW weekend.

We think it's only fitting to begin with renowned designer Sania Maskatiya, who seems to do no wrong. Her bridal collection boasted the perfect fusion of soft pastels and modern silhouettes, while not forgetting traditional her notes. The collection, DILARA, did not disappoint with art work in zardozi and resham accompanying

Meanwhile, designer duo Saira Shakira went for florals and it was stunning! The Kali – A Bloom collection incorporated an amalgamation of a variety of crafts and ornamentation techniques using sequins, elaborate hand embroideries and 3D embellishments. We can't forget the intricate detailing using crystals, pearls, gota and sequins in pastel hues against contrasting bright colors. Keep an eye on this collection because we think these kinds of styles will be on high trend this wedding season.

The actor closed the show looking like an actual star in an embellished silver gown which was heavily encrusted with sparkling crystals. We love the flattering neckline and her braid, which exudes soft femininity.

The designer brand certainly shook bridal couture up and we adore it for that. Their Golestan collection was uber modern but in all the right ways. Think bright, vibrant and festive as rich fabrics like tissue nets, velvet and hand-woven silk stood out. A modern take on the old-fashioned gharara teamed with a short shirt took the cake and is a piece to take inspiration from.

Sonia Azhar's Timeless Pieces looked stunning on Laal Kabootar starlet Mansha Pasha. The red and gold heavily embroidered show-stopping lehenga and halter blouse looked super striking. Warrior queen vibes, anyone?

HSY cast a spell with Empire, drawing inspiration from four influential empires – Ottoman, Mughal, French Polynesian and Russian. The designer travelled all year round in search of unique motifs and incorporated them with age-old embroidery techniques using dhaga, reshamkora and naqshikada. Mehreen Syed walked the ramp in a perfectly regal deep red ensemble with gold dhaga and resham embroidery paired with a contrasting burnt orange block-printed shawl finished with a chunky gold border.

Meanwhile, Maya Ali simply stunned in MNR Design Studio, whose collection ChaharBagh brought a Punjabi touch to the runway. Mohsin Naveed Ranjha attempted to pay an ode to Islamic art and architecture through his work.

Maya donned a double layered deep red lehenga while her Parey Hut Love co-star, Sheheryar Munawar, looked dapper in a matching deep red kurta with straight pants and a short embroidered full sleeves jacket.
